Put Service Back into the Church Service - Jeremy Myers 2018-11-06

Churches around the world are trying to revitalize their church services. There is almost nothing they will not try. Some embark on multi-million dollar building campaigns while others sell their buildings to plant home churches. Some hire celebrity pastors to attract crowds of people, while others hire no clergy so that there can be open sharing in the service. Yet despite everything churches have tried, few focus much time, money, or energy on the one thing that churches are supposed to be doing: loving and serving others like Jesus. Put Service Back into the Church Service challenges readers to follow a few simple principles and put a few ideas into practice which will help churches of all types and sizes make serving others the primary emphasis of a church service. This revised and updated book now includes discussion questions, perfect for a small group setting. Books in the "Close Your Church for Good" series: Preface: Skeleton Church Volume 1: The Death and Resurrection of the Church Volume 2: Put Service Back into the Church Service Volume 3: Dying to Religion and Empire Volume 4: Church is More than Bodies, Bucks, & Bricks Volume 5: Cruciform Pastoral Leadership

Faith-Rooted Organizing - Rev. Alexia Salvatierra 2013-12-06

Since the 1930s, organizing movements for social justice in the U.S. have largely been built on secular assumptions. But what if Christians were to shape their organizing around the implications of the truth that God is real and Jesus is risen? Reverend Alexia Salvatierra and theologian Peter Heltzel propose a model of organizing that arises from their Christian convictions, with implications for all faiths.

Worship in the Garden - J. Wayne Pratt 2013

As individuals, we often find peace, comfort, and a close connection to God in a garden. Gardens often provide a space for worship in a neutral setting outside the church for people to gather and share a faith experience. From Easter sunrise services to church retreats, the special worship experiences described in Worship in the Garden can enhance one's experience of God as a congregation worships together outdoors. The beauty of creation enhances these sensitive, meaningful liturgies for Communion, Blessing of the Animals, Healing, Renewal of Wedding Vows, Resurrection/Memorial Services, Graveside, Baptism, Baptismal Reaffirmation, along with other services. Inside you will learn about liturgical gardens and biblical precedents for outdoor worship.

History of the Harvard Church in Charlestown, 1815-1879 - Harvard Church (Charleston, Mass.) 1879

From Synagogue to Church - James Tunstead Burtchaell 2004-03-11

This important work challenges an entrenched scholarly consensus, that at the beginning it was inspired leaders - not ordained officers - who dominated the church. James Burtchaell illustrates that the traditional argument on behalf of clerical authority had read history backwards, and found the apostles to be the first bishops. In this study, Burtchaell reads history forwards, and demonstrates that first century Jews knew only one form of community organization, that of the synagogue. The three-level structure of offices in the synagogue - president, elders, and assistant - emerges, in the author's estimation, as the most plausible antecedent for the Christian offices which stand forth clearly in the second century. Burtchaell's conclusion is that ordained office is a foundational element in Christianity, but that, while the officers presided from the first, they rarely led. Thus, while Jesus' brother James presided as the ordained chief of the mother church in Jerusalem, it was Peter - Jesus' inspired veteran disciple - whose voice carried most authority. This revisionist historical account of Christian origins creatively subverts the established positions on church order, and thus opens up the arguments to new and larger conclusions.

Women's Church Attendance Within the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints During the COVID-19 Pandemic - Sarah Michelle Broliar 2022

In-person religious gatherings have been linked to the transmission of the SARS-CoV-2 virus that causes COVID-19. Public health guidance restricting gatherings has met resistance, compromising by limiting behaviors and capping attendance in worship services; virtual worship services have been offered in many congregations as an alternative. This qualitative study provides insight into the decision-making process of women members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, as they chose to attend in-person church services during the COVID-19 pandemic when virtual church services were offered. Twelve women living within the Bothell Washington Stake, a geographic unit of the LDS church in western Washington, USA, were interviewed one-on-one remotely between May and July 2021. Data were analyzed through deductive and inductive coding using the social cognitive theory as a guiding framework. Six themes emerged around the decision to attend and/or discontinue in-person services: 1) women went to church to receive the Sacrament, renew their covenants; 2) women felt the presence of the Holy Spirit stronger with the congregation in-person than in isolation at home; 3) Women returned to church to counter the loss of purpose and community they experienced during COVID-19; 4) women attended in-person to reaffirm their commitment to God, to support their family, and serve the congregation; 5) women attended when their risk-benefit assessment favored in-person services; and 6) discontinued when it did not. The author recommends the following actions be taken by public health officials to increase compliance with public health recommendations: encourage home worship during infectious disease outbreaks, partner with LDS leadership to develop guidance on safely preserving the essential components of worship services and ordinance of the Sacrament, and consider harm reduction strategies for women to meet and worship together over prolonged outbreaks of communicable disease. Future research should examine the changing patterns of in-person worship over time, particularly when restrictions are relaxed and tightened again.
